Raps Strikes at Missile Bases

McClellan Asserts They Invite Tough Curbs on Unions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., said today costly strikes and work slowdowns at missile bases invite a tough new law to outlaw unions responsible for such things.

McClellan said his Senate Investigations subcommittee in hearings this week produced "evidence beyond any reasonable doubt" that organized labor at the Cape Canaveral missile base abused the strike weapon to enrich its members at taxpayers' expense.

The subcommittee has heard a parade of witnesses denounce the 109 strikes and uncounted work slowdowns reported at Canaveral in the last 4½ years, charging these have inflated costs by millions of dollars and slowed the program.

Sought Overtime Pay — McClellan said it was clear that most of the strikes were called on flimsy grounds with "the premeditated purpose" of throwing missile projects behind schedule so workers could draw overtime pay in a rush to catch up.

The subcommittee has produced evidence that many plumbers and electricians drew wages up to $764 a week, including overtime computed at four times the regular wage rate.

Robert Palmer, top labor leader at the base, has acknowledged strikes "must have" slowed the missile program. He denied any strike was designed to force overtime wage payments, and swore he never authorized a walkout.

Cork From Champagne Bottle Results in Suit

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — A local waitress who claims she suffered permanent injuries when a cork from an exploding champagne bottle struck her in the eye seeks $200,000 damages.

Miss Nell Bennett filed the suit Thursday against the Taylor Wine Co., Inc., of Hammocksport, N.Y., and the Tampa Wholesale Liquor Co., Inc.

She said the accident happened at a local restaurant while she was carrying the bottle on a tray.

Time, an Hour at Least, Will Fly Sunday Morning

Someone said, "Time waits for no man!" This may well be true, especially when someone sneaks up behind and gives time a big push about this period of the spring season every year. It's called "daylight saving," and it's designed to give everyone but birds and chickens — who don't reckon by the clock — an extra hour of daylight to do whatever they wish.

Officially, daylight savings time goes into effect at 1 a. m. Sunday. Lots of early go-to-bedders will — or should — set their clocks AHEAD one hour upon retiring. This will help them get the kids to Sunday School and themselves to church on time.

The "lost hour" of sleep? We'll all get that back on the last Sunday in September. Meanwhile, lots of happy daylight hours to you, and... if you're reading this at 6 p. m., better figure it's really 7 p. m.!

Kennedy, Advisers Study New Moves in Laos Crisis

Think Reds Aiming at Conquest

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy discussed the deepening crisis in Laos today with his top diplomatic and military advisers. New U.S. moves were believed under urgent consideration.

Some officials said the possibilities to be considered ranged all the way from further waiting for a cease-fire to the extreme of U. S. and allied intervention under the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization.

Russia has agreed with Britain on the principle of a cease-fire between the Soviet-backed rebel forces and the pro-Western forces of Premier Boun Oum, but the Reds have stalled on fulfilling the cease-fire agreement.

Bohlen Attends — Today's conference was announced as a meeting of the National Security Council, but some officials who do not regularly attend its meetings were observed entering the White House.

These included Charles E. Bohlen, the State Department's top-ranking expert on Russia; Edward R. Murrow, director of the U. S. Information Agency, and Secretary of the Army Elvis J. Stahr.

Allen W. Dulles, director of the Central Intelligence Agency, arrived carrying maps and charts. It was the Security Council's third meeting in eight days with Laos coming in for primary attention.

The council met last Saturday, and again Thursday. U. S. officials said today that by delaying the effectiveness of a cease-fire in Laos, the communist-led rebels seem to be trying to compel the Boun Oum government to treat them as victors and accept them as the effective government in Laos.

Officials Worried — This interpretation was based on a rebel demand that the government send delegates to a truce talk at communist headquarters. The Soviet news agency Tass said that Prince Souvanna Phouma, whom the communists treat as the legal premier instead of Boun Oum, had given the Laos government 48 hours to send delegates.

Bank Robber Gets $2,180 in Holdup At Dane Village — MADISON (AP) — A holdup man, his face masked with tape and gauze, robbed the bank in the nearby Village of Dane and escaped with $2,180 in cash Friday night.

The FBI, county and state authorities set up roadblocks in the Dane County area but the bandit apparently slipped through their net.

The gunman entered the bank, a branch office of the State Bank of Lodi, shortly before 7:30 p. m. closing. Authorities said he confronted Herbert Wagner, the manager and cashier, with a foreign-made pistol and demanded, "Give me the money and you won't get hurt."

Wagner was alone in the bank when the holdup man entered. He said the man was dressed in an Army-type surplus jacket and wore horn-rimmed glasses. The escape car was dark in color but Wagner said he did not know its make or year.

Royal Government Can't Contact Foe

Emissary With White Flag Waits Vainly in War Zone

LUANG PRABANG, Laos (AP) — A government emissary journeyed into no man's land under a white flag today, hoping to meet pro-communist rebels and arrange a truce. He failed to make contact.

Pro-Communist rebels opened a new attack in Laos at dawn today while the royal officer waited. Two hundred Pathet Lao rebels attacked Ban Keun, just 44 miles north of Vientiane. It is a key government city in the district 10 miles east of the Vientiane-Luang Prabang highway, military sources said.

The hard pressed royal government, meanwhile, ordered its troops not to fire on Pathet Lao rebels unless fired upon.

Gen. Phoumi Nosavan, government military strongman and deputy premier, dispatched the white flag of truce from the administrative capital of Vientiane in what he called a gesture to prove "our good will for peace."

The emissary spent four hours in no man's land, the government said.

Claim Victory — Phoumi had met with his officers and U. S. military advisers before sending the emissary out. Western diplomats, noting Phoumi's hourly broadcasts appealing for a truce have gone unanswered, were skeptical the rebels would agree.

Phoumi sent Lt. Col. Siho Lamphouthakou to Vang Khe, a town 60 miles north of Vientiane on the

Canada Will Ship Grain to Red Chinese

HONG KONG (AP) — Canada announced today it has made a new deal with Peiping for a massive grain lift to Red China's hungry millions that may set an all-time record.

Canadian Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton indicated the deal would run well over the $60 million grain agreement made with Peiping last January and might "amount to the biggest sale of grain in Canadian history."

Hamilton would not spell out the terms of the present deal, but he hinted Canada had agreed to give the Communists short-term credit.

In view of the present world situation, he told a news conference, Canada recognizes the need "to be taken without risk for human life." He said he was confident "every reasonable precaution has been taken to minimize this risk."

Galveston Jails Filled — GALVESTON, Tex. (AP) — Thousands of rioting youths turned into a nightmare for the police last night and early today.

City and county jails were filled with jeering young men, many of them apparently college students, who staged impromptu fights and hurled bottles and beer cans indiscriminately.

Many suffered bruises and lacerations but no serious injuries are reported.

Galveston Police Chief O. E. Henson said the disturbances started when the youths began throwing beer bottles on the pavement near Seawall Boulevard, near the bay, early last night.

Many in Hospitals — Sheriff's deputies were dispatched to help local police. Firemen sprayed hoses on the milling crowd of youngsters.

Hospital emergency rooms soon were jammed with rioters who appeared to be only slightly injured.

"We had them so thick in here at one time that they were lined up in the hall and could hardly walk by," said Dr. Homer Reed, emergency physician at John Sealy Hospital. "A lot of them had just minor bruises but they were bringing in their buddies who were hurt a little worse."

Chief Henson said he had no idea how many young people were arrested but that they still were being booked early today. Estimates of those arrested varied from several hundred up to 2,000.

Splash Day is an annual event which officially opens the ocean bathing season each spring in the Texas island city of Galveston.

A police sergeant, R. L. Keller, said "a bunch of fights broke out among the college students. When

Defense Department Change

McNamara Plans New Type Budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara plans to pattern his budget officials and employees. The code of military missions rather than on the individual needs of the separate armed services.

A paper outlining this new system is being circulated to the three services by Charles J. Hitch, Pentagon comptroller.

Hitch discussed the new budget plan yesterday with newsmen. He did not mention the size of the budget to be presented to Congress next January.

The plan resembles one offered by Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor (Ret.), former army chief of staff, in his book, "The Uncertain Trumpet," published last year.

Arguing for a change in defense budgeting, Taylor wrote that the three services are told they had so much money and to split it up like a pie. He proposed instead that the money be appropriated by the missions instead of by services.

Last week, Taylor was appointed by President Kennedy to review U. S. intelligence and "unconventional" warfare operations, including guerrilla activities.

In speaking to newsmen yesterday, Hitch said the plan was to assemble the budget in "package" form. Each package would bring together for cost estimates all the items and operating expenses for one mission.

At the same time, the Defense

COQUILHATVILLE, the Congo (AP) — Congolese troops kept President Moïse Tshombe a virtual prisoner here today and his foreign minister, Everiste

Kimba, to Stanleyville and hand them over to followers of Patrice Lumumba.

Lumumba was slain last February while a prisoner in Tshombe's hands.

Officials Confused — The Katanga government said it had received reports of the plot through Brazzaville. Antoine Gumbumba, chief deputy under Lumumba who has set up a rebel government in Stanleyville, is the only leading Congo politician who did not come to Coquilhatville for the "unity conference."

Other Congo officials here appeared confused and frightened by the army's unexplained restriction of their movement.

President Joseph Kasavubu of the central Congo government, who has made no attempt to leave Coquilhatville, apparently still holds the reins of power.

Jobless Claims Show Decline

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Labor Department reports the number of idled workers drawing unemployment checks fell 108,700 the week ended April 15 to a total of 2,837,500.

This was the eighth straight week the figure declined. The latest total, the department's Bureau of Employment Security said yesterday, is 584,800 below the record high of 3,422,300 reached in mid-February.

In mid-April of last year 1,980,500 were drawing unemployment checks.

Nelson Will Name New Officers for Menominee Land

Indians Get Independence as Federal Control Ends Monday

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — Gov. Gaylord Nelson said today he will name the first county officers of the new Menominee County early next week, thus establishing the 72nd county government of the state and the only all-Indian county in the United States.

The new county will come into being May 1 as a result of the effective date of federal legislation terminating national government stewardship over the tribe of about 3,200 Menominee Indians who have occupied the reservation lands now in Oconto and Shawano Counties for more than a century.

Nelson said he will probably make public his appointments to seven county board seats and administrative offices of the new county next Tuesday morning. The county board will also function as the town board of the one-town county. Some county services will be shared with neighboring Shawano County, as well as public school services.

Candidates' List
The Indians recently sent Gov. Nelson a list of candidates for the county officers, as evolved after an informal poll held in connection with the spring election. But the governor is not bound to follow that list, lawyers explained here.

Present law provides that the governor's appointed slate of county officials will hold office for 90 days, pending a special local election. But there is a bill in the legislature, gaining bipartisan support, to permit the appointive slate of officials to serve until the next regular election, which would be until the fall of 1962. The governor said he has no objection to the measure.

In a farewell message to the Menominee people this week, Melvin Robertson, federal government superintendent of the Menominee reservation, offered an optimistic rebuttal to those critics of the termination legislation who have held that it will be hurtful to the Indians.

May Be Rough
"There may be rough going for some of the people for a while, but I firmly believe that they for the most part have the background, ability and intelligence to adjust rapidly to the new scheme of things," he wrote.

"Personally, I cannot share the fears and concern that many Menominees and friends on the outside have expressed as to the future here," he said, but he said that much will depend upon the skill of the management retained to operate the tribal enterprises, including the lumber mill and the reservation forest.

The tribe's assets, valued at some $35 million, include 200,000 acres of timber and the famed mills of Menominee Enterprises Inc., the tribe's operating corporation. The Treasury Department also will turn over some $1.3 million held in trust.

Some 80 per cent of the tribe's 3,720 members make their living from the timber operation. The Mills employ 350 men on a year-around basis and as many as 300 in peak season. Products of the mixed pine and northern hardwood forests have brought in about $2 million annually.

Nelson Faces Stiff Opposition In Attempt to Unseat Auditor

Keliher One of Capitol's Most Widely-Known Men

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

MADISON — Gov. Gaylord Nelson probably stubbed his toe severely when he announced his intention to replace J. J. Keliher, state auditor for 14 years and a career state employee with 32 years of service.

No nomination that the governor could have conceived will be as hard to put through the Republican state senate as to the governor's choice of E. C. Giesell, as a means to depose the tough-minded Keliher as the top financial policeman in Wisconsin public life.

The position of state auditor is responsible for auditing the financial performance of all of the manifold divisions of the state government. It also provides auditing service for hundreds of counties, towns, cities and villages on a fee basis. Keliher is more widely known to local government officials through several decades of his auditing services than virtually any other ranking state official.

Personalities, Politics
Meanwhile, however, the governor's choice of Giesell, another career man whose state service approximates that of Keliher, is an example of the fascinating interplay of statehouse personalities and politics. The governor plainly recognized that he would have no chance to unhorse Keliher, given his legislative contacts, with a political appointment or even a nonpartisan outsider. The selection of Giesell, the career man who also has legislative contacts, was an ingenious stroke.

But there is profound doubt that it will be a successful one. Giesell won't have enough friends in the senate who will want him in Keliher's office badly enough to want to give their friend Keliher the boot in the process.

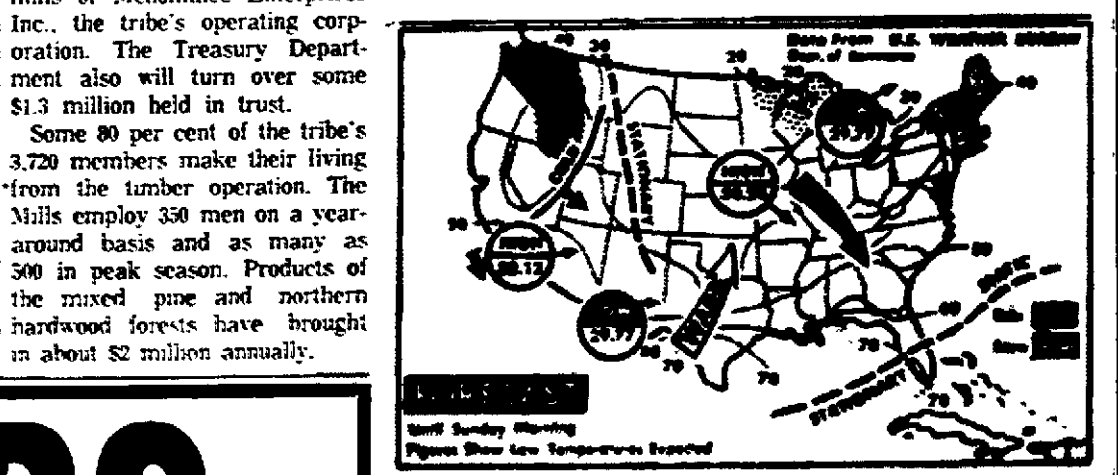

There is an irony in the selection of Giesell, moreover, since Giesell only two years ago was demoted from his position as a ranking and independent department head when he was absorbed in Gov. Nelson's new department of administration and given a subordinate job. Giesell made no public comment at the time but he was reportedly displeased by his demotion.

Resented His Counsel
Nelson said nothing in his brief press announcement about his desire to get rid of Keliher, but it is widely known that the Democratic executive office staff has resented what it regards as Keliher's private counsel to Republican legislative critics of the day. Keliher has formed friendships with several leading state senators from his close professional association with legislative committees as a part of his statutory duties. He sits with the legislative finance committee, as an example, and as a result has flanked Sen. W. A. Draheim of Neenah, its chairman, for two legislative sessions. He is also a favorite of Sen. Frank Panzer of Kaukauna.

The rebels have been demanding that cease-fire talks be held in territory they control, claiming they are the victors in Laos' internal struggle. They had started new offensives just before the British-Soviet cease-fire call, gathering in new areas near Vientiane.

gates to a conference at Xieng Khouang.

Top administration leaders are known to be deeply concerned about the increasingly belligerent attitude of the communist bloc toward the United States.

Some here fear that the failure of the American-backed rebel invasion of Cuba plus Kennedy's reluctance to become involved in war in Southeast Asia may be taken as evidence of weakness and indecision on the part of the Washington government.

Speaks in Chicago
Kennedy flew back to Washington early today following a speech in Chicago Friday night, where he said: "We are the chief defender of freedom in a time of maximum danger. We have committed ourselves to the defense of dozens of nations. This we are determined to do."

Kennedy, speaking to 5,000 Democrats at a fund-raising dinner, threw away his prepared text, dealing mainly with domestic matters. He spoke off the cuff for about 15 minutes, and then abruptly ended his speech.

"We can only defend the freedom of those who are ready to defend themselves," he said. "Our greatest ally is that people desire to be free."

It was Kennedy's second speech in two days. In New York Thursday night, he told the American Newspaper Publishers Association that the nation faced an unprecedented threat from the Communist drive to expand its power in the world.

Rusk Flies Home
Secretary of State Dean Rusk flies back to Washington this morning from a meeting of the Central Treaty Organization at Ankara, Turkey. Rusk had been scheduled to arrive here Saturday night, but the Ankara conference completed its work a day ahead of schedule.

Kennedy called the Security Council meeting for midmorning. He had been expected to return from Chicago later today but presumably cut short his stay there in order to get back to Washington quickly and give his personal attention to the latest reports on the Laotian crisis.

The Security Council has also discussed the Cuban situation, although officials have indicated it might be some weeks before new anti-Castro measures were put into effect, following the failure of the rebel invasion.

State Department authorities were reported still hopeful the Communist side in the Laotian civil war could be prevailed upon to carry out the Soviet-British cease-fire agreement before the military situation deteriorated further.

Newspapers and Mr. Kennedy's Request

President Kennedy's speech to the American Newspaper Publishers Association indicates better than anything else how he has come to realize the "real and present danger" of Communist advance. He used the speaking platform to tell the world that the period of attempts to "negotiate" with the Soviet Union is over.

The President did not go into great detail about his charges that well-meaning newspapers had printed information of use to the enemy. Presumably he has correct data. But it would almost appear that he blamed the press for what has been the attitude of leading members of his own administration — notably Ambassador Adlai Stevenson and Undersecretary Chester Bowles — that a soft attitude could do wonders with the Reds. As far as restraint and self discipline in the press is concerned with security measures, the real cause of any breaches is the often ridiculous censorship in Washington which many times has nothing to do with security, except of some bumbling individual. The press cannot rely upon handouts and releases because its pur-

County vs. State Patrol

Some of the Wisconsin assemblymen, who ganged up to kill the widely supported bill to extend to state traffic patrol officers the right to make arrests for general law violations in the course of their road patrols, now are trying to sugar their records by offering a bill to subsidize the enlargement of county traffic forces.

Their bill, now before the assembly, would add a dollar to the $16 automobile registration fee now charged and devote the proceeds to grants in aid to counties for the employment of additional county police according to their comparative registration totals and road mileages. It may very well be that counties can profitably use some additional traffic police. But it is equally evident that the state patrol needs more men and equipment, a fact that the legislature has obdurately ignored. Moreover, there is no field of law enforcement in which county boundaries are more irrelevant than in the field of road law enforcement. A drunken driver in a high speed auto can traverse many of our counties in a half hour, and thus escape the jurisdiction of the county police.

The crying need in Wisconsin is for a

There was a hint last fall from the Communist conference in Moscow that Albania was not the mild little puppet regime which most of the European satellites have become one way or another. Gen. Hoxha sided ideologically with the Chinese version of how Communism ought to take over the world. Instead of coexistence he preferred war.

The following directions are of practical moment just now. In the event of our company's being ordered into service, a quantity of articles mentioned below will be essentials of the outfit, and it is well that our mothers, wives and sisters know how to make them. Bandages may be made from two to four inches wide, in strips five yards long, selvages and hemmed edges removed, and seams strong but as light as possible.

These should be tightly rolled and each roll tightly secured. Linen or cotton may be used, but the cloth should be sufficiently strong for serviceable use.

Lint is made by scraping old linen or cotton cloth into a light flock. Loose threads should be removed. Cut cloth in strips three inches wide, and use a moderately sharp knife for scraping.

Old linen cloth makes the best lint. Make up in half-round packages and mark "cotton" and "linen" separately.

However, if "combat conditions" are to prevail for the press, we assume that the rest of the nation also should be alerted. The Kennedy administration was taken to task over what appears to have been an almost unexplainable debacle of stupidity in Cuba. Laos may have been lost, at least temporarily, to the Reds because of hesitation in Washington and London and the foolish hopes that Communist pledges could be honored.

The President made his attitude clear that the enemy is very real, that he is threatening to take over the world, that we must stand and fight. But it will take more than speeches to repel the Soviet Union.

It has been obvious for years that we were in an undeclared war with the forces of Communism around the world. A large segment of the nation's press has said so. Now the government in Washington must implement this realization, defeat the enemy and not bring down a nuclear holocaust upon mankind. It's a large order, but the whole system of justice and human dignity is at stake.

better integration of existing forces, and the assignment of police in the vast areas of upper Wisconsin and on some of the major arteries of traffic in sparsely settled counties where surveillance now is thin or lacking altogether.

Several governors recently have acknowledged this need through their mandates to study committees in several instances. Every private motorist with opportunities for travel in Wisconsin is aware of the chaotic organization of our separate and often rival and jealous forces. But the legislature at Madison, in spite of ostentatious interim study committees that have expended thousands of dollars over the years, resolutely pretends that there is no problem. And when public disillusionment grows so great that even the indifferent legislative politicians cannot ignore it except at their peril, they propose a measure that would throw additional policemen about the map at random.

Gov. Nelson, the ranking Democrat at the capitol, and Lt. Gov. Knowles, the top Republican official there, have expressed concern about highway safety problems in many public speeches. It may be time for them to intervene in a constructive way by following out their stated worries.

The Kremlin began stirring up some opposition to Hoxha back home. But the general beat them to it — at least so far. Some 30,000 political prisoners are in concentration camps. Yugoslavian newspapers, this time on the side of the Soviet Union, report horrible tortures. Some 60 Albanian officials are supposed to have been executed in the last 10 days. Yugoslavia even called home diplomatic representatives on the grounds that their lives were in danger.

The moral is clear. Take a man with the mind of a monster. Show him how to be one and he'll improve on the techniques. From the Red point of view, that is.

BY T. HARRY WILLIAMS

The haze of a beautiful autumn hung over the Maryland countryside. Northern soldiers holding the Potomac line above Washington in that fall of 1861 had never seen a region quite like it. This business of soldiering, they decided, might not be so unpleasant after all.

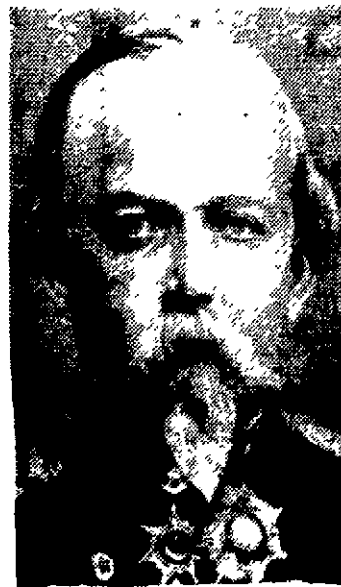

True, their division commander, Brig. Gen. Charles P. Stone, was one of those West Point martinets who believed that route marches and plenty of target practice were just the thing for green troops. But the men realized it was necessary, and they were eager to fight. They wondered why Gen. George B. McClellan, commander of the Army of the Potomac, did not turn them loose on the rebels across the river.

Late in October they got their fight. McClellan received intelligence that the Confederates were planning to pull out of Leesburg. To ascertain the intentions of the enemy he sent a division over the river to Dranesville, and suggested Stone make a reconnaissance on his own sector. Stone went somewhat beyond McClellan's instructions, crossing two regiments at Edwards' Ferry, and two others farther upriver.

All Is Confusion

The latter force made it over the river with great difficulty, but finally on the morning of Oct. 21 took position on Ball's Bluff. In the woods around them were Confederate troops who gave every indication of attacking. But federal reinforcements were on the way under command of Col. Edward D. Baker.

When Baker, who knew almost nothing about how to direct men in battle, arrived on the scene, everything was in confusion. The Confederates were pouring a galling fire into

The Victim: Gen. Charles P. Stone.

Stone's huddled troops. Before Baker could form a plan for action, a Confederate bullet took him in the heart.

After that his force lost any sense of cohesion. When the casualties were counted, of the approximately 1,000 men who had crossed the river, 200 had been shot and 700 captured.

In the press, Ball's Bluff was referred to as a disaster. Obviously the battle had been mismanaged. Out of the recriminations would come a grim chain of circumstances that would wreck the reputation of Charles Stone.

Stone was a member of the McClellan circle, definitely a gentleman. Like most of that

The Trial of an Innocent

The Battle of Ball's Bluff stunned the young nation unaccustomed to major military encounters and huge casualty lists. Of the approximately 1000 men who group, and McClellan himself, he was a mediocre soldier.

Again like McClellan, he had no realization that civilians were going to take a hand in running the war. During his tenure of command on the Potomac, he gave a striking demonstration of his naivete in political matters. He published an order that denied runaway slaves the right of asylum in his lines. When two entered the camp, officers turned them back to their owner.

This episode embroiled him in an argument with the governor of his home state of Massachusetts, and with Sen. Charles Sumner, who flayed Stone in a senate speech. The general replied with a letter that was a virtual invitation to a duel.

Stone's dispute with the governor and the senator reached a climax about the same time that the public was shocked by the debacle at Ball's Bluff.

Rumors Circulate

It was a time of preternatural suspicion. In the minds of Republican congressmen, everybody — whether he was a soldier, a civil servant, a legislator — had to establish his loyalty, preferably by taking some kind of oath.

The trouble was that nobody knew exactly how to define loyalty. It was so much easier to detect treason in the form of a wrong opinion.

After Ball's Bluff, ugly rumors concerning Stone circulated in Washington. He was carrying on treasonable intercourse with the enemy. He and his wife associated intimately with slaveholders in his district. He was secretly a traitor. At Ball's Bluff, Stone had deliberately sent his men into a trap.

Stone had no inkling that his loyalty was under scrutiny or that he was about to be investigated by one of the most powerful congressional committees in American legislative history — the newly-formed Joint Committee on the Conduct of the War.

Its chairman, Sen. "Bluff

Ben" Wade of Ohio, so dominated the committee that it could be well termed the Wade committee. Besides investigating McClellan and the Army of the Potomac, Wade ran a separate inquiry of Stone.

As a routine witness, Stone was questioned in a general fashion. He placed the blame for the defeat on Baker and said he returned runaways only when asked to do so by the proper civilian authorities. As he walked from the hearing, Stone probably did not suspect that the committee was whetting an ax for him.

Next Wade summoned a long list of witnesses, consisting mainly of malcontent volunteers and civilian soldiers in Stone's command, and bullied them into giving the "right" answers which criticized Stone.

When Wade decided he had enough evidence to get Stone, he asked Secy. Edward M. Stanton to arrest him. The order for the arrest was given to McClellan, who shrank from carrying it out. He knew the falsity of the charges, and instead asked Stanton for a military trial. The secretary refused. But Stanton agreed to give Stone an opportunity to state his case to the committee.

Fatal Handicap

In presenting this defense, Stone was badly handicapped by the committee's rules, according to which he had to appear alone, in a secret session, not knowing what specific accusations had been made, or by whom.

At this fatal interview, Stone was a frantic and agonized man. Wade's refusal to present a bill of particulars forced him to reply with a general and somewhat vague defense. Nevertheless, he was able to demonstrate that he had given Baker wide discretionary authority, and that the defeat had been caused partly by the colonel's rashness and by the difficulties of the terrain.

Stone said: "I have, so help me Heaven, but one object in all this, and that is to see the United States successful. And I am exceedingly sore at his outrageous charge."

Stone's testimony made no impression. By this time, McClellan was becoming alarmed for his own position. If the radical Republicans in congress wanted a sacrifice, McClellan preferred that it be Stone. He soon found an opportunity to get out from under.

A Negro refugee from Leesburg came in with a story that Stone was on friendly terms with secessionists there. This hazy tale was enough for McClellan. He consented to arrest Stone. At midnight on Feb. 8, Stone was placed in custody and taken to Fort Lafayette in New York harbor. To his last he was confident that McClellan would save him from disgrace.

Put in Solitary

Stone was placed in solitary confinement. At the end of 50 days his doctor protested that this harsh treatment was destroying the general's health. He was then transferred to Fort Hamilton, where he stayed for 189 days.

During this time he made repeated requests for a military trial, or if there were no charges against him, for permission to return to the army. He received no answer. The War Department's refusal to grant him a hearing violated the Articles of War.

Finally, in August, 1862, after repeated protests, Stone's supporters in congress managed to pass a special law which provided for his release. He was a free man, but he had received no official vindication. For months he waited for orders. Then he went to Washington.

He saw Lincoln, Stanton, and other dignitaries. Everyone sympathized — and threw the blame on someone else. The most he could wring from the authorities was permission to reappear before the committee.

Charges Demolished

On Feb. 27, 1863, Stone met the inquisitors for the third time. His final appearance was a triumphant acquittal. He had now seen a copy of the testimony and the charges against him, and could answer each accusation specifically. He easily demolished the committee's previous indictment.

This was as close as Stone ever came to any official exoneration. For a period he served in the army's gulf department. Later he returned to the east to command a brigade in the Army of the Potomac.

Before embarking on the spring campaign in 1864, he wrote a final appeal to Lincoln: "I respectfully ask, for the sake of the service which I have loved and never dishonored, that some act, some word, some order may issue from the executive which shall place my name clear of reproach."

The act, the word, the order never came. Wherever he went, that cloud of suspicion, unknown and damning, moved with him. In 1864 he resigned his commission.

Under the Capitol Dome

Observations About Statehouse Charges

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

MADISON — Statehouse politics is extremely human. As in marriage, sometimes the storms come up without very plausible reasons.

Lately the capitol atmosphere has been flamed with angry charge and counter-charge as Gov. Nelson attacked the Republican legislature and the Republican leadership in the legislature, almost gleefully, counterattacked.

It is difficult from the inside of the system to judge how this impresses the voter in the fourth ward of Stevens Point. Chances are that he will respond according to his normal political predilections.

Actually the exchange of inky mimeograph blasts is not very important. It is the sort of thing to which a realist could have reconciled himself when he read the election returns last November, when the people installed a Democratic governor and gave him on the same day a legislature controlled by a rival political party. No power on earth could have prevented an explosion under the circumstances. The wonder is, perhaps, that it took nearly four months to develop.

PROPAGANDA BATTLE

Many men whose partisan feelings are not highly developed might say that such an equivocal decision by the electorate might have called for caution and the eschewing of political wrangling.

But there are very few saints and philosophers in the Wisconsin state capitol in elective offices, however numerous they may be in other parts of Wisconsin. These are men who are ambitious, who know that the issues on which the next campaign will be based, whatever they are, will relate to this legislative session, and who are humanly resolved that they will do the best they can for themselves and for their political parties.

To give the antagonists credit, to a considerable degree they also are convinced of the rectitude of their positions. That is the essence of party government, disagreement on principle. The fact that Gov. Nelson, on the one hand, and the Republican legislative leaders, on the other, are using all of the arts and resources of publicity and propaganda at their command is merely to testify to their realistic appreciation of the requirements of practical politics.

As usual in the fight between parties, there are no blacks and whites. There is something to be said for both sides. Gov. Nelson felt profoundly convinced that he had cut back spending requests as far as a civilized government could afford. He was deeply antagonized when the Republican finance committee cut below his figures. But it would be hard to imagine, given the popular images of the parties, any other result. Republicans are not about to surrender their claim to be the economy champions in current public affairs.

NUSBAUMS

The governor also was sorely aggrieved when the Republicans singled out his friend and No. 1 administrative subordinate, Administration Commissioner Joe Nusbaum, for repeated criticisms.

This has nothing to do with Nusbaum as a person, really. The fact is that Nusbaum is generally regarded in a friendly way by legislators who know him. He is a symbol of the legislative-executive rivalry and conflict. There were in the past Republican Nusbaums, and there will be others in the future. It is entirely conceivable that Nusbaum could be holding office under a Republican governor, and be under the same kind of attack from a Democratic legislature.

The Nelson administration tempted the Nusbaum attack by excessively publicizing claims about his achievements. That made the Republican financiers intent upon auditing his work. When Nusbaum turned out to be poor in arithmetic, as he testified on his budget affairs, the opportunity for his critics was irresistible.

This is the warp and woof

Nelson's Plan For Resources Given Support

Commissioner Olson Calls Project 'Great And Far-Reaching'

MADISON (AP)—The Wisconsin Conservation Commission threw its support today to Gov. Gaylord Nelson's plan for preserving the state's natural resources.

Commissioner Paul Olson of Madison, in urging the commission to back the project, described the plan as "great and far-reaching."

Olson, member of a commission subcommittee that met with Nelson to discuss the plan two weeks ago, said suggested changes the Conservation Department proposed have been incorporated and added the final draft "has been worked out satisfactorily."

Nelson's program envisions spending $50 million in the next 10 years for development and preservation of resources.

Higher Cigarette Taxes

A one-cent-a-pack increase in the cigarette tax would finance the program involving parks, forests, recreation areas, public fishing grounds, wildlife areas, preservation of scenic beauty, youth conservation camps, new lakes and tourist information centers.

Bills to carry out the plan have been introduced in the Legislature.

The commission's endorsement of the plan was unanimous and included authorization for its special committee to continue to work with the governor's office in obtaining enactment of the bill.

At its meeting two weeks ago to consider the governor's bill the commission heard department division chiefs suggest changes they thought should be incorporated.

The commission's action indicated one department objection to setting up a special committee to handle the program separately from the commission had been resolved, although there was no comment at the commission meeting.

After the department heads raised objections, the governor later called these "petty and pique."

Potato Growers Face Trouble Over Prices

MADISON (AP)—A University of Wisconsin potato specialist said today Wisconsin potato producers, along with growers in other major production areas—are apparently in for a bad price year.

Plans for heavy plantings will cause the condition, John Schoenemann says.

Wisconsin growers have indicated they intend to plant some 55,000 acres this year, some 2,000 more than in 1960. For the 10 key potato producing states the acreage is expected to be seven per cent more than last year with a total of 1.2 million acres.

"U. S. Department of Agriculture economists have warned that growers are headed for over-supplied markets and low prices during much of the 1961 season," Schoenemann said.

To Your Good Health Tonsils Can Be Problem For Adults and Children

BY JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I am 38. My tonsils have had pockets filled with decayed yellow matter. Would this cause me to have a bad breath? Do you advise having the tonsils out? Would that solve the bad breath?" — M.C.

Infected tonsils are one possible cause of bad breath and an example of why brushing the teeth or using a mouth wash isn't necessarily the cure for it.

There are other possible causes of bad breath including some lung disorders, nose and/or sinus infections, cavities in the teeth, food that catches in crevices between the teeth, and infected gums.

I'm not going to say that removal of infected tonsils will stop bad breath. It will if the tonsils happen to be the sole cause.

Dr. Molner

Soundest Advice

In a case like this, I conscientiously pass the buck to your own physician who, able to take a look at your tonsils, can give the soundest advice as to whether they should be removed.

Here's another question that came in the same mail:

"I am in my late 20's, and my doctor tells me my tonsils are badly infected and I should have them out. I have heard that after a person has the tonsils out, he ages faster. Is there any truth to this?" — R.B."

No, there's no truth to it at all. In fact, the opposite should tend to be true. When tonsils are infected, they place a certain strain on the system, just as any focal infection must. Removal of tonsils, in such a case, improves the general health, and so should help keep you young. There is nothing like robust health to keep a person young.

Not Just Children

In view of the ages of the people who wrote the above letters, it seems to me that it might be worth pointing out that bad tonsils are not the exclusive property of children.

Very few health problems are. Children tolerate the "T.&A."—tonsil-and-adenoid operations very well, but that's no reason for sex, filthy literature, and the Bible-taking out the tonsils in childhood local philosophy of birth control, unless they really need removing.

Tonsils serve a purpose. If infection is causing more harm than the tonsils are doing good, then an operation is indicated, and the host remove 'em. If the reverse is true, keep the tonsils as long as the good outweighs the harm.

Many people are going to keep their tonsils, to their own benefit, until the 20's or 30's or later, and — happy thought — there are a great many of us who will keep our tonsils all our lives.

Salivary Glands

"Dear Dr. Molner: My husband has salivary glands that come and go as large as pouches on each side. What causes this? Is it cancerous? Would this cause offensive breath?" — Mrs. P. I."

The usual cause of such swelling that comes and goes is an obstruction in the duct. This could be thick salivary fluid, scarring from infection, or a stone in the duct. It is conceivable that it could cause bad breath. While cancer can occur in these glands, it is usually a hard mass that does not come and go, and usually is present in only one gland, not both.

Syndrome Explained

Note to "X". What's Aldrich's syndrome? A "syndrome" is a group of symptoms which fit together into some disease pattern. Aldrich's syndrome is featured by a deficiency of blood platelets, which are needed to stop bleeding. Hence, the result is bleeding or bruising (which is bleeding under the skin). Also included in the syndrome are eczema and recurring infections.

Acne is one of the most terrible problems of growing up. If you are afflicted with this aggravation, or if you have children who are, write to Dr. Molner in care of this newspaper for a copy of his helpful and comforting booklet, ACNE — THE TEENAGE PROBLEM. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope, and 20 cents in coin to cover handling.

Columnist's Second Volume

Clara Hussong's Nature Book Excellent One for Children

Post-Crescent News Service

The Golden Picture Book of Nature Walks. By Clara Hussong, illustrated by Marjorie Hartwell. Golden Press. $1.50.

Clara Hussong, who has been writing a nature column for the Post-Crescent for 28 years, has done an excellent job of presenting the story of nature for children in her latest nature book. The illustrations by Marjorie Hartwell add a dimension which enhances the book although the text by Mrs. Hussong is valuable alone.

The book is written in a style that children should have no difficulty in understanding. By relating what they read to the illustrations they can glean a considerable amount of knowledge about the ways of nature in the fields and woods, around the ponds and marshes and along streams.

Some Dangers

Mrs. Hussong also reminds her readers constantly that there are some dangers inherent in nature study but she offers tips to minimize them.

She also cautions readers not to take the country as something which is to be used without regard to common courtesy, such as asking the permission of farmers to cross their fields. Throughout the volume there also are constant reminders that one form of life in the woods and streams frequently lives off another form. But she softens this by explaining why it is necessary in the life cycle.

Takes a Hike

After describing various forms of animal, bird and plant life, Mrs. Hussong takes the reader on a hike through the four seasons. She has ample hints to make such hikes of the utmost value and here again the Hartwell illustrations are helpful.

The last page headed "Danger! Beware!" tells hikers about their manners such as "Hike only in places where you know you are welcome," and obey all "No trespassing" and other signs. It also gives other hints about avoiding potentially dangerous places, poisonous plants and reptiles.

Her Second Book

The book is the second authored by Mrs. Hussong. Her first, The Golden Picture Book of Birds, was published in 1959. She also has written numerous nature articles for national magazines.

Both she and her husband are avid nature lovers and this appreciation of what nature means and how interesting it can be permeates Mrs. Hussong's latest work. The Hussongs live at 332 E. Beaufort Ave., Allouez.

The Desire Which abounds in the heart of every hunting dog is clearly displayed by this part-Walker hound owned by the Roeland Brothers, route 2, Menasha. The dog is nearly 15 feet off the ground as it attempts to reach coon pelt secured in the branch of the tree.

Menasha Hounds Win Coon Trial

A pair of sleek, rangy hounds about 200 feet from the tree owned by the Roeland Brothers, where the pelt has been left. From ten to a dozen dogs are freed to find the scent and trail. The first dog through the stakes is declared line winner and the first one to bark "treed" is the tree winner.

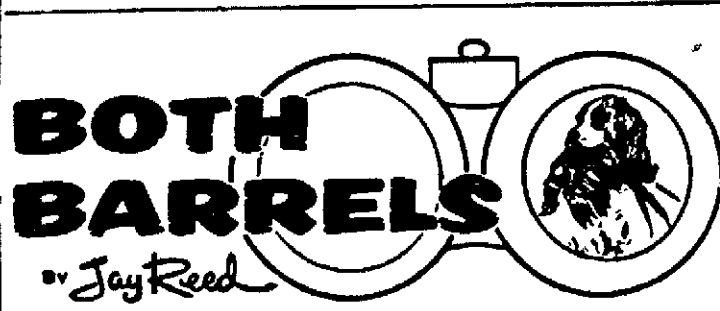

The Roelands have been running dogs in coon trials for about 30 years. When they spot a dog which shows promise they purchase it and map out a training program for it. They attend trials and the fish are returning to the through Wisconsin and Illinois all summer.

In the fall of the year, the dogs are used for actual coon hunting. The dogs run a course laid out ahead of time by club officials. A coon pelt is dragged on a rail over the course and, at a predetermined point, is placed high in a tree. Two stakes are placed trophy competition. The Roeland Brothers, owners of the dogs, enter them in competition through Wisconsin and Illinois.

It has been Both Barrels' habit to look with a skeptical eye upon promotional-type communications from recreation areas, wherever they might be. But there came to this desk the other day a letter from my good friend Cyril Reidt, Alma, Wis. It contained a brochure giving information on vacation opportunities to be found in that Mississippi River town.

Now, at the risk of sounding commercial, Both Barrels recommends that anyone thinking about a vacation in the northwestern part of Wisconsin write to the Alma Booster Club for one of these brochures

Among other things, Alma is little more than a good overhand cast from the writer's hometown of Nelson. Thus, I know what the possibilities are for fishing, hunting and vacationing. I know, too, that what you'll read in the brochure you can believe. You'll not find the area developed as you would normally expect in a vacation-resort region. This, in itself, is an attraction. There are motels, hotels, restaurants etc. But the commercial aspect is missing. One thing I'll guarantee: If you like to catch panfish, walleyes or northern, you won't be disappointed.

The recent remarks of a Waupaca supervisor regarding what should be done with reckless boaters on the Wolf River received wide publicity. What he said was ill-considered, at best, but I'm inclined to agree with Warden Rex Oatman that the man simply was trying to underline a point. Whatever his intent, there is no doubt he touched upon a problem which will get worse before it gets better.

Both Barrels sat in on a special meeting called by the New London Boat Club to consider charges of reckless boat handling on the Wolf. It is to the club's credit that the meeting was called but, unfortunately, too few fishermen were there.

Predictions never have been my long suit but I'd bet a cold beer on a hot night that the day will come when boat traffic on the Wolf River will be handled just exactly like auto traffic on U. S. 41. There'll be posted speed zones, no parking areas and patrols of enforcement men to see that everybody conforms. One of the things you hear is that the water belongs to everyone. That's true. But there will always be people who will abuse their rights.

All the sanctimonious statements about acting like gentlemen, brotherly love and treating another as you yourself would want to be treated are just dandy. But you have to be practical. Whenever you put a couple of hundred or more people with diverse interests together in a limited area there's bound to be trouble. And, as anyone who has put in any time at all on the Wolf River knows, there is trouble aplenty there.

Both sides have some good arguments and legitimate gripes. But the fact remains, in my opinion at least, the problem will never be solved until a tough, tight set of regulations are imposed and enough enforcement personnel provided to make the rules stick. We may not like it, but that's the way it will have to be.

Check Shows Wolf Anglers Average Half-Fish Per Man

Conservation Wardens concerned around 40 per cent on the lower Wolf and Winneconne area. It may be of interest to fishermen that a few white bass, catfish and red horse were noted in the fishermen's bag, indicating that these species are just starting their spawning runs and fishing for these species will improve. Northern pike are starting to congregate in the shallow bays of the lakes which always produce good fishing success.

An aerial count of fishermen using these waters on one day show a total of 3,030 of which 947 were shore fishermen with 2,083 fishing from 1,032 boats or just over 2 fishermen per boat.

Wardens patrolling from boats checked 1,990 fishermen who caught 1,090 pike for an average of just over one-half fish per fisherman. Best fishing results were produced on the upper Wolf in the vicinity of Shocton. Pike fishing on the river is short lived because spawning is about completed program for it. They attend trials and the fish are returning to the through Wisconsin and Illinois all summer.

Non-residents accounted for about 8 per cent of the fishing pressure on the upper Wolf and

Tax Proposed To Help Teach Conservation

Challenge Put Down To Those Who are Critical of Program

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — A northern Wisconsin legislator has provided a challenge for those who have complained that the conservation teaching programs in the schools has been indifferently managed.

Will they back a small property tax levy to pay for a bigger and stronger effort to teach outdoors resource conservation principals and methods?

The tax plan comes from Sen. Reuben La Fave of Oconto, at the request of a number of influential conservation organizations, including the Izaak Walton League and the Northeast Conservation Council. LaFave is one of the most active promoters of conservation causes in the state legislature.

Heavy Criticism
The law now provides for such teaching in the schools, but there has been heavy criticism about non-compliance in many districts, and the quality of performance in others.

The LaFave bill would set up a new state office to direct the work, and endow it with nearly $200,000 a year for the preparation of teaching materials and other costs.

The money would be raised through a new property tax of one hundredth of one mill on the assessed value of all property within the state.

The model for such a tax would be the state forestry tax, now levied at two tenths of a mill, which is the only tax on property levied by the state government during the last quarter of a century.

Lake Access Issue Brings New Problems

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Lake cottage owners are beginning to worry about interference with their rights resulting from the increasing demand for public access facilities to recreational waters.

A parade of witnesses before the assembly Conservation Committee at a hearing here backed a bill by Assemblyman William Stenger of Oshkosh that would prohibit the purchase or condemnation of any public lake access right-of-way within 300 feet of an existing dwelling.

As Assemblyman Richard Peter-son of Waupaca County noted, such a prohibition would probably prevent the ordering of public access routes on any lake that is rimmed with cottages on private lots.

Had the Right
(Local units of government such as counties and towns have long had the right to provide access to lakes and streams, but an increase in such activity has resulted from the encouragement of the state government in the form of state aids authorized by the legislature in 1959. The subsidies are distributed by the state conservation department for approved projects.)

The cottagers' spokesmen told the legislators that they are not opposed to the principles of providing public access to public waters in a time of growing population and intensely increasing interest in the outdoors, but they asserted they have a right to protect their property values also.

Tourist Economy
The cottagers represent one of the major elements of the tourist economy of the state, they said. Dr. E. W. Schneberger, speaking for the conservation department, did not directly approve or disapprove the Steiger bill, but asked the assemblymen to leave some flexibility in the access law to permit the state and its localities to handle emergency situations. He said the conservation commission thus far has been careful to protect the rights of riparian owners.

over four pounds. Erickson said he took the suckers on an artificial minnow.

Shore. This failed to deter the anglers, however, as they were still putting out boats as late as 6 p.m. when the first edges of darkness were creeping in.

Lights Moving
By 7.15 p.m. some of the red and green signal lights of boats of 50 to 75 boats have been congregated in the spawning area on the lake and gave no evidence of making a move to shore.

All winter the sand pike hit most anglers have been landing well through the ice and it appears they plan on continuing the fast action this spring.

Sand Pike Keeping Fishermen Busy in Lower Cliff Area

Best Catches Taken on Minnows; Anglers Drift Over Sand Bars

BY JIM HARP
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

LOWER CLIFF — Nature hasn't exactly been cooperative this spring, but Lake Winnebago's sauger pike, better known as sand pike, have done their part to keep the hearts of fishermen warm.

Despite cold, blustery and sometimes rainy weather, the saugers have been hitting at a rate that has experienced Winnebago anglers scratching their heads.

For the past week limit catches have been common. And most anglers have had to spend only a few hours battling the elements to get their five sand pike.

On Wednesday evening there were so many cars at the public landing on the north shore near this tiny hamlet that it was difficult for traffic to move.

If you can remember back to Wednesday it was cloudy, some threatening black masses were moving across the sky from southwest to northeast and the wind was kicking up whitecaps that collided with the North Shore.

Use Minnows
Roman Funk, operator of the north shore's lone boat livery, has reported a brisk business this spring. Word has spread fast about the sauger catches and hundreds of fishermen have been getting in on the take. Upwards of 50 to 75 boats have been congregated in the spawning area on the lake and gave no evidence of making a move to shore.

Because of the amount of work being done in the state park area, most anglers have been landing boats at the narrow, rocky, public landing. Conditions are crowded but if you're patient you'll get on the water and at the sauger.

Warehousing Market Now Available In The Fox Cities

A complete warehousing market for the industrial clients of the Fox Cities area is now available. The firm, J. J. Keller & Associates, Inc., of Neenah, Wis., illustrates the fine services given to the users of the firm. This firm acts as a meeting place for those who have warehouse space available and those who desire use of such space. Anyone who has useable space, but it is standing idle should seriously consider contacting the Keller firm. Such space often times represents a sizeable capital investment and every effort should be made to secure a return on this investment.

At the present time the Keller firm does have some space available in a number of public warehouses in the Fox Cities. These fine public warehouse facilities have been serving Fox Cities' industries for numerous years, particularly the paper industry and its various affiliates.

These facilities are available on a flexible basis, i.e., either by a space or square foot basis per month or time period; rates based upon the ton on hundredweight unit stored per month or other time period; rates based upon a unit or containers basis stored, on a monthly or time basis; or any other method of rating adaptable to the particular situation desired.

Handling charges are also dealt with on a similar basis, either on an hourly rated plan or by the in-and-out charge of a particular unit or freight. We also have facilities where all the handling can be done by the employees of the firm storing the goods.

Each of these warehouses are serviced by one or more of the three major railroads serving this area, namely: The Chicago & Northwestern R.R., the Soo Line R.R., and the Milwaukee Road R.R. These various railroads serving the warehouses provides joint line connections throughout the United States and the North American Continent. All of these facilities are also easily accessible by trucks. This efficient freight handling is a highly favorable situation.

Today, you can enjoy better indoor climate than the fondest hopes of the wealthy of a few years back or the kings of the ages. Available to you is year around comfort which men have long tried to obtain in various ways, but never before have had. For example, in the eighth century, the Caliph Mahdi of Baghdad had snow imported from the mountains and packed between the double walls of his palace to keep it cool. Fans were used in the ancient Egyptian palaces. Indoor heating devices date back to earliest civilization.

Yet, not until now has the goal of all-year comfort been reached. Now, automatically you can bring June into your living room on the hottest day of August or the coldest day in January. The miracle of year-round air conditioning is ready for you to enjoy.

Quite commonly, many of us think of air conditioning as being the same as cooling. However, professional heating and cooling men are quick to point out that proper conditioning of the air includes much more than cooling. It also means control of moisture, cleaning the air, circulating it and may include providing for a proportion of fresh air. Complete year-round air conditioning also includes heating the air and controlling moisture during the winter season as well.

What size cooling unit will you need, what will the systems of this size cost, what it will cost you per season to operate summer air conditioning, what are the major types of central air conditioning systems and how are they installed in the home, — all these or any other question you might have to ask, can be answered at the Menasha Sheet Metal. Stop in for additional information or call Bill Hartzheim at PA 2-3653.

Tryouts Set for Attic Theater

Informal tryouts next week for both acting and backstage jobs in three plays and one musical comedy opens the working phase of Attic Theatre's 12th summer season.

Tryouts, open to valley residents, will be at 7:30 p.m. Monday and Tuesday at the home of Attic Director Mrs. Ted Cloak, 122 N. Union St.

The community theater will launch its summer season the weekend of July 4 with the Noel Coward comedy, "Blythe Spirit."

All productions will be presented arena style in the experimental theater of Lawrence College Music-Drama Center, a fact which sets a first this year for Attic Theatre.

The group will attempt its first full-scale musical when it gives the Broadway show, "Anything Goes," by Bolton and Wodehouse and tunes by Cole Porter later in the summer.

The other two plays scheduled for the season are Robert Sherwood's romantic comedy, "Petlied Forest," and a more recent Broadway success, "Once More With Feeling," by Harry Kurnitz.

'Gunsmoke' Changes to Hour Program

BY BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Gunsmoke" finished shooting its first hour-long show this week. Says Dennis Weaver: "We thought it would never end."

The reaction is understandable. With Jim Arness, Amanda Blake and Milburn Stone, Weaver had made about 240 half-hours over a six-year stretch. It's no small change to a seven-day shooting schedule, double the usual amount.

"And we've got 34 of them to do this season," Dennis added with a sigh. "That will take us to the end of next March with hardly any time off. If we were going into such a schedule with a new show, it would be a little easier to work up enthusiasm. As it is, March seems a long, long distance away."

Chester May Quit

At the end of the season, Chester may turn in his badge and limp over the hill.

"I'm not saying I positively will leave," said Dennis. "I said that last year and then went back."

What changed his mind?

"Money," he admitted. "I figured I had gotten about it. I could get out of the part. But they offered me such a nice deal that I had to consider my family and accept. Now we've bought a lot and will build a house for the first time."

On Late Hour

"Also there were certain fringe benefits. The major one was the chance to direct. I did three shows last year and will do some of the hours, too."

I asked Dennis how he thought "Gunsmoke" would fare in the new hour format.

"I don't know," he replied. "I worry about the time slot. We'll be on from 10 to 11 and so will lose a lot of the kids. That might hurt us."

St. Norbert Piano Teacher to Give Sunday Concert

DE PERE — Paul Reed, St. Norbert College pianist whose stature has grown steadily in local music circles, will present a recital at 8:15 p. m. Sunday in Penning's Auditorium on the college campus. Reed is an instructor of piano and theory at St. Norbert.

The performance will be the second public recital here this season for the Casey, Iowa, native and marks his fifth concert at St. Norbert since arriving in 1959. In addition to recitals for a number of civic groups, Reed made a short concert tour of Iowa, Illinois, and Wisconsin earlier this year.

Sunday night's program will include Beethoven's Fifth Concerto, Frank Martin's Prelude No. 8, Ravel's "Ondine," and "Reflections in the Water." "Gardens in the Rain," and "Evening in Granada" by Debussy.

David Beadle, bassoonist with the Buffalo Symphony, will be the second piano to play the orchestra reduction for the Beethoven concerto. Beadle and Reed met at Fort Sheridan, Ill., when both were with the Fifth U. S. Army Band. Beadle, a native of Galesburg, holds a masters degree from the Eastman School of Music.

Oshkosh Man Honored

James L. Basiliere, 909 Winnebago Ave., Oshkosh, was one of three medical students to receive the Lewis E. and Edith Phillips awards at the University of Wisconsin's Medical School Field Day. The awards go to students displaying superior scholastic ability.

Are Young Players Taking Over Game?

Is bridge becoming a young man's game? Talleyrand once said that a man who doesn't play whist is headed for a lonely old age. I see grey but veterans needn't worry. There chairs all around me when I step into any of my favorite bridge clubs, so the statement must apply to bridge, too.

Still, there's that very young team that won the Vanderbilt Cup last month in Denver. Arthur Robinson is only 24, and his teammates, Robert Jordan, Eric Murray and Charles Coon are in their early thirties.

It all provoked Johnny Crawford into asking: "You don't suppose we're getting old, do you?"

Crawford himself broke into big-league bridge in 1937 when he won the Open Team Championship at the national tournament that December. He wasn't yet of voting to earn a living and make their way in the world. There's room for new blood in the ranks of the bridge champions, for a lonely old age. I see grey but veterans needn't worry. There chairs all around me when I step into any of my favorite bridge clubs, so the statement must apply to bridge, too.

College Bridge
Most college students play bridge, and some of them play in the annual Intercollegiate Championships. Some of the hands were harder than usual this year, perhaps in an effort to put the young players to a real test of skill. One of the toughest hands was this:

West's only chance to defeat the contract is to lead the ace of hearts and then shift to a club. He plans to win the first or second trump with the king of spades and put his partner in with another club. East will then return a heart, and West will take the setting trick by ruffing.

This is a pretty hard defense for West to find. It's unusual to lead the ace of declarer's bid side suit. If West manages this, he should have no trouble finding the right shift to clubs.

What can South do about it? What would you do if you were back in college, playing this hand for the glory of Alma Mater?

Cut Communications
The winning line of play is to cut communications between the defenders. You must prevent East from gaining the lead. If East cannot lead a heart, West will never get his ruffing trick.

When West leads a club at the second trick, put up dummy's ace. Now only one lead from dummy will help you—the king of diamonds!

East must play a low diamond, and you discard your remaining club. This gives West an unexpected diamond trick but prevents him from getting to his partner with a club.

Now you can draw trumps, giving up just one trump trick to West.

This sort of play was called "The Coup Without a Name," by Ely Culbertson some years ago. I would expect it to be executed by about one mature expert out of a thousand.

Still, it gave the college boys and girls a taste of high life and an exciting hand to talk about until next year's contest.

First Lady in Audience At Ballet Performance

BY FRANCES LEWINE
WASHINGTON (AP) — Mrs. Kennedy's attendance at the Washington Ballet a big boost last night and she was thanked for her dedication to the cultural community.

The first lady's appearance at the opening night of the ballet drew a round of applause from an audience of 1,500 in Lisner Auditorium.

And, no one seemed to mind that she was late again — the second time in a row in her theater going.

Mrs. Kennedy was doing extra duty in behalf of the arts. Among those in her party of eight for the evening was John Loeb, New York investment banker and a member of her fine arts committee.

Later, when she stopped off about 25 minutes at an after-theater party with the Ballet Guild at famed Anderson House.

The dancers had waited their arrival.

Inspires Cultural Community
When they were seated in a center loge section, Eric Johnston, president of the Motion Picture Association and a trustee of the Washington Ballet Guild, stepped before the curtain and called attention to "the presence of our charming and gracious first lady."

He said Mrs. Kennedy's "deep dedication to the cultural community... has inspired all of us."

Members will review the movie "Question 7" and be entertained by vocal and instrumental selections by grade school students.

Then, amid imaginative and colorful settings, Mrs. Kennedy watched the ballet, which included "Pas de Trois" from Swan Lake, Giselle (Act II) and Ondine. She said later she had liked the program.

Between the acts, Mrs. Kennedy in her sleeveless dress, braved the cold night air to smoke a cigarette on an outside terrace.

Your Problems

Short-Haired Boys 'Neater' Than Pin-Curled Long-Hairs

BY ANN LANDERS
DEAR ANN LANDERS: This letter is being written by five teenage couples. We are all high school juniors and seniors. Last night we were discussing boys' haircuts and what they mean — if anything.

Some of the fellows are in favor of long hair. One guy even sees nothing wrong with a faint peroxide streak. A boy who has especially good-looking hair wears it with a big wave in front and admitted that his mother showed him how to set it with clips.

Two of the fellows who wear their hair cropped short said they didn't want to be bothered with long hair. The girls seemed to favor shorter hair because it looks more masculine. Do you think a guy's haircut tells anything about him? If so, what? —Hair Ye

Dear Ye: Yes, I think hair does tell something about a person. A young man who pours a quart of axle grease over his flowing locks, pushes in waves, dips and curls, and sets it at night is paying entirely too much attention to himself. Personally, I prefer a shorter haircut because it looks neater and more masculine than the mop-tops.

No teenage boy should lean too heavily on his flowing tresses as a prop for his vanity. It's hair today and gone tomorrow, fellows.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Are you some kind of nut or something? In a recent column you said a wife should be flattered if her husband is running around and she offers him a divorce and he chooses her instead. You seem to forget that he chose his wife before he got mixed up with the babe.

Then you go on to say a wife should forgive and forget and act like nothing had happened. Why should she? If the wife is caught cheating she's disgraced before the world, her children are taken away from her and she's considered a tramp.

My husband has been involved

No Hope
Dear No: You wouldn't take medicine prescribed for someone else, would you? Well, why take someone else's advice? The party for whom that advice was intended had a totally different set of problems.

Her husband had one fast affair and admitted he was foolish. Your husband is a chronic chaser. Where's the similarity? Anyone is entitled to a second chance, man or woman. I've said it before and I say it again.

DEAR ANN: Many girls write and ask you how to get a man. I'd like to know how to get rid of one. I met this pest last summer and we had a few dates. I can't tell you why he bores me stiff. He phones several times a week, sends me mushy cards and drops in at the house unexpectedly.

My folks think he's very nice, but I don't have any interest in him. H-a-a-a! —Martha

Voice Objections To Detour Route For Neenah Street

Residents Cite Safety Factors; Petition for Change in Proposal

NEENAH — Objections to the detour route for S. Commercial Street were presented Friday night at an informal public hearing before the Neenah Common Council. The detour route, as approved by the council, follows Alcott Drive, Congress Road and being parked overnight on the Street and Washington Street.

Residents along the route protested that a safety problem would be created. Calvin Zernicke, 1117 Congress Road, who presented a petition to the council requesting the route be changed, said many areas along the route did not have sidewalks and the additional traffic load would create a hazard for children.

He also listed several other factors he felt made the route undesirable. The route was narrow in many spots, he said, and in the section outside the city limits did not have a speed limit.

Safety Factors
Zernicke proposed a detour route to follow Alcott Drive, Maple, Cecil, and Oak Streets and Washington Avenue.

Other residents also protested on the safety factors and the traffic speed.

James Asmuth, 645 Congress St., wanted to know if four-way stop signs could be put up at the intersections of Congress and Laudan Boulevard and Congress and Division Street.

Otto Korth, 219 Alcott Drive, said there was no posted speed limit in the area outside the city limits and also wanted to know who would pay for the upkeep of the route.

William Daniel, 757 Oak St., and Vernon Ponto, 640 Oak St., presented petitions, signed by all residents in their blocks, requesting that Oak Street not be considered in the detour route.

Mayor Chester S. Bell, Wayne Bryan, Director of Public Works, and members of the council explained why the Congress Street route was selected and attempted to answer the objections of the residents.

The mayor said the speed limit problem will be solved by the time the detour goes into effect. He said the problem exists because one lane of Congress Road is in the city and the other lane is in the town of Neenah.

Speed Limit
He added that he has talked to Laurel Heaney, Town of Neenah chairman, and that Heaney told him the town would pass a 25 mph speed limit on its half of the road and speed limit signs will be posted.

Ald. James Dinius added that the speed limit will be strictly enforced.

Bryan said other routes had been considered but that Maple and Oak Streets were in poor condition and there is heavy traffic from children attending Wilson school and there will be more with the new junior high school opening in September.

He said the base of Maple and Higgins Avenues was not as good as Congress because of sewer and water installation last fall.

The detour route will be maintained at city expense, Mayor Bell said. He added that the city is considering putting in cement sidewalks in the sections now without walks, but that if this is not possible this summer, temporary gravel walks will be put in.

Parking Question
H. V. Oakes, 1136 S. Maple St., raised the question of parking for S. Commercial Street residents while Commercial is torn up. Mayor Bell said he felt a deep sympathy for the people living on

2 Cars Collide

MENASHA — Cars driven by Mrs. Gerald Schutkoske, Dunning Street, route 2, Menasha, and James L. Britzke, 17. 68 Tayco St., collided at Third and Milwaukee Streets at 1:58 p.m. Friday. The Britzke auto, struck in the open, left rear, was spun around and halted on a terrace.

Crews of the Mullen Electric Co., Appleton, work on a cable in Oklahoma connecting Altus Air Force Base with 12 Atlas missile launching sites.

Graphic Arts Students Visit Fox Cities
A group of 13 students from Stout State College, Menomonie, all majoring in the graphic arts, spent Thursday and Friday in Appleton, Neenah and Menasha touring firms related to the printing industry.

The students toured Nekoosa-Edwards Paper Co., Port Edwards, and Consolidated Water Power and Paper Co., Wisconsin Rapids, on Wednesday and then came to the Fox Cities area.

The tour is the annual field trip, sponsored by the Stout Typographical Society at Stout College, for students in the school's printing department.

Associate Professor Lloyd Whydowski, a native of Appleton, was in charge of the trip.

Graphic arts graduates from the school enter the printing industry as shop managers, salesmen or printing teachers in high schools and trade schools. They begin their graphic arts training in their sophomore year.

Thursday the group toured the Gilbert Paper Co., Menasha, and the Marathon Division of American Can Co., Neenah.

On Friday they toured the Institute of Paper Chemistry and the Appleton Post-Crescent.

At the Post-Crescent the students viewed the entire operation of producing a newspaper. At the other plants they went through departments specifically related to the graphic arts.

3 Divorces At Oshkosh

Menasha Residents Get Separation in Winnebago Court
OSHKOSH — County Judge Herbert J. Mueller Friday granted divorces to two Menasha women and one rural Menasha man on their charges of cruel and inhuman treatment.

Ann L. Paul, 39, Menasha, was granted a divorce from John L. Paul, 42, whereabouts are unknown. The matter of alimony was held in abeyance until he comes within the jurisdiction of the court. There are no children and each is to keep his personal effects.

They were married Dec. 10, 1949, at South Bend, Ind., and separated Aug. 30, 1960.

Marcella J. Kondy, 45, Menasha, was divorced from William K. Kondy, 45, Lynn, Mass. They were married Oct. 25, 1941, and separated June 18, 1960. She was awarded custody of the two children and he is to pay $50 a month support for their one minor child. He was divested of any right in their real estate which was awarded to her subject to the encumbrance. She also will get the balance of some money held in escrow after a portion is used to pay attorney fees.

Donald J. Nys, 22, route 2, Menasha, was granted a divorce from Patricia Nys, 18, who lives in Massachusetts. They were married at Lowell, Mass., and separated in March of 1959. Custody of their one child was held open pending more information as to the status of the child and the matter of support also was held.

The CPAs will discuss professional fees at a closed afternoon meeting. A social hour will begin at 5:30 p.m. with dinner at 6:30.

Appleton Firm Plays Part in Missile Plans

An Appleton company is playing a vital role in the country's Atlas missile defense program. The firm is the Mullen Electric Co., presently engaged in laying over 200 miles of underground cable for the Air Force.

The cable will link Altus Air Force base in Oklahoma with 12 Atlas missile launching sites. The cable-laying operation is unique in that the job is done completely by machinery.

The cable will pass under branches of the Red River, under highways and through solid rock. Work is progressing at the rate of about three miles a day.

When completed, gas will be pumped through the cable to keep it dry. Automatic alarm devices will report any interruption on the cable.

Open House at Parish Center

A public open house will be held at the new All Saints Episcopal Church parish center at 2:30 p.m. Sunday.

Bishop William H. Brady, of the Fond du Lac Diocese, will participate in the dedication services at 11 a.m. Sunday. Twenty-five children and seven adults will be confirmed by the Rev. Carl Wilke, rector, during the service.

Invitations to tour the new facilities have been sent clergymen of all faiths in the Fox Cities area.

The $200,000 building has 15,000 square feet of space and 29 rooms. It will be used for Sunday School and social activities.

The women later changed their minds because of changed family circumstances and Driscoll agreed to cancel his contract with them. The women maintained their purchase of Bollenbeck's house was contingent upon that sale, but Bollenbeck disagreed and the jury agreed with him.

Civil Defense Test Shows Area Could Have Survived

Fox Cities Area Escapes 'Direct Hit'

A cloud of radioactive death from a simulated nuclear attack spread over the Fox Cities Friday. The imaginary fallout came from imaginary nuclear explosions in the state and all over America in a nationwide Civil Defense exercise.

There was no direct hit in the Fox Cities area in the attack that began at 3 p.m., but fallout from nuclear explosions in Wisconsin and Minnesota threatened the lives of people in this area.

Lee J. Penney, Civil Defense

Kimberly Alert Goes Smoothly

KIMBERLY — The civil defense alert Friday was well organized in the village as Quentin Williams, police chief and civil defense director, outlined plans well before the event took place.

Kimberly-Clark, in cooperation, evacuated four of their general offices, moving all personnel to a pre-designated point in the plant which would permit continued operation. Mill management was among the group evacuated.

"Tornado drills" were held in all four schools in the village. Students from upper floors were led to first floor rooms where they took cover against inside walls. Williams reported, the drills were orderly and evacuation was speedy in all cases.

Attack Phase
Schools, hospitals and city officials in Appleton were warned within 13 minutes after the attack phase of the drill began, Penney said. The Outagamie County Sheriff's Office relayed a warning to other county cities, villages and towns within 21 minutes.

All potential enemy killers were known at least 1 1/2 hours before they could arrive here.

Besides the fallout, the greatest problem of the Fox Cities area would have been the rapid influx of almost 60,000 evacuees from Green Bay and Brown County. All of these people were given imaginary food, beds and medical care in the Appleton area Friday.

Radio Reports
Here is a rundown of the attack as it occurred Friday. The summary is taken from the radio reports received by the Civil

Gives Advice for Control Spraying Of Dutch Elm

OSHKOSH — Spraying to control the beetles which carry Dutch Elm disease is advised only in immediate areas where the disease has been found. County Agent Vernon W. Peroutky said today. A few home owners who place high value on their elms may wish to spray even if Dutch Elm has not been found.

Since only four trees have been found thus far in Town of Algoma, Oshkosh, Neenah and Menasha, it does not warrant an all-out community-wide insect spraying program.

The county agent stressed that all weak and dead elms should be removed now and destroyed by burning since it provides an ideal place for beetle infestation. Stumps and wood may be peeled of bark if burning is impractical.

This week is about the deadline to spray to avoid harm to robins and other song birds. It is late but not too late for sanitation measures, the county agent stated.

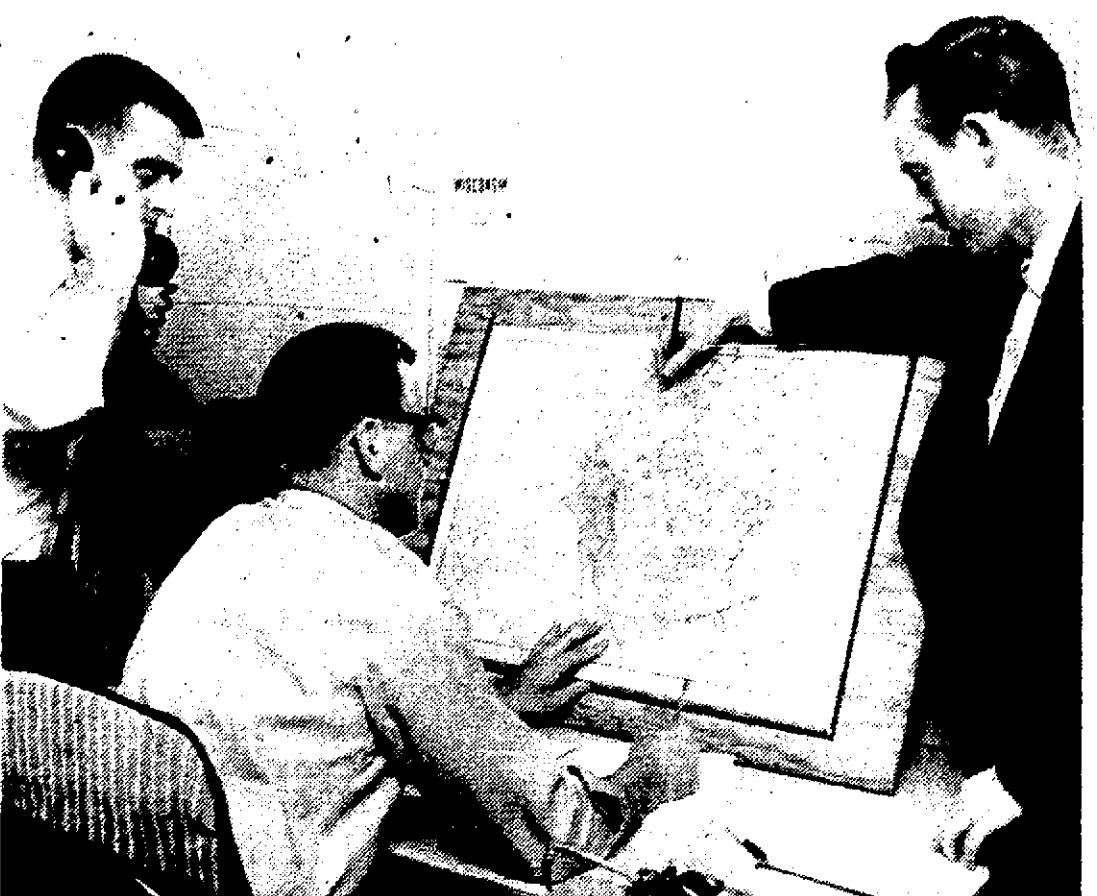

A 12 per cent solution of methoxychlor gives good control of beetles if applied now.

Oshkosh Court Rules in Favor Of Appleton Man

OSHKOSH — A Municipal Court jury has ruled in favor of Edward R. Bollenbeck, Appleton, in a suit to collect $1,000 from two Neenah women in a proposed house sale which fell through.

Bollenbeck took a $1,000 note as earnest money when Mrs. Grace M. Runde and her daughter, Miss Margaret P. Garland, signed a purchase agreement for his home. Mrs. Runde and Miss Garland earlier had agreed to sell their home to Larry Driscoll, Neenah real estate man.

The women later changed their minds because of changed family circumstances and Driscoll agreed to cancel his contract with them. The women maintained their purchase of Bollenbeck's house was contingent upon that sale, but Bollenbeck disagreed and the jury agreed with him.

Part of the Outagamie County Civil Defense team plot enemy aircraft on a plotting board as part of a nation-wide Civil Defense drill Friday. All simulated enemy attackers over the continent are recorded on the board. From left are Maury Mead, county CD radio officer; Carl Thiel, police dispatcher, and Lee J. Penney, Outagamie County and Appleton CD director.

Seek to Better Teacher and Student Links

Guidance System at Oshkosh College to Undergo Change

OSHKOSH — The Oshkosh State College faculty has approved a new advisement system to keep a close student-teacher relationship.

"In the past, most of the academic advisement has been done by division directors," Dr. Gordon Drake, coordinator of guidance services said, "but the college has become too big for this system."

Under the new plan, a student will have a faculty member in his major department or a faculty member familiar with the student's study goal as an advisor.

Small Groups
A faculty member will be responsible for the guidance of a small group of students who have academic interests similar to those of the adviser. As an adviser, the faculty member will help a student prepare his semester class schedule, as well as a long term program.

"Because the program is new, it will become operative by stages," Dr. Drake said. During the summer session, regular students who are enrolled in summer courses, and freshmen who report for orientation, will be assigned to faculty advisers. Next fall, all students will be assigned to faculty advisers except for seniors who are scheduled to remain under the direct advisement of division directors.

Sacred Heart Church Sets First Communion

First communion will be given to 134 children at Sacred Heart Church at 8:15 Sunday. Parents will accompany their children to the communion table.

Because the children and their families will tax the church's capacity, the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Emil Schmitt has asked other parishioners to attend 7:30 or 11 a.m. or 12:15 or 5 p.m. masses.

Teachers Visit Mental Clinic

Dr. Giebink Tells Neenah Faculty of Psychotherapy Use

NEENAH — Winnebago County Guidance Center Friday conducted the second of two sessions for Neenah public school teachers to acquaint them with the psychiatric services offered to emotionally disturbed children and adults.

Dr. John Giebink, psychologist, told the teachers that psychotherapy is the tool to teach a person to live with himself and others so he can live a happier and more complete life.

"All persons make adjustments, but children who are emotionally disturbed have maladjustments which, although ineffective, are difficult for them to give up," he said.

Play therapy is the means for reaching into a child to grasp his problem and the county guidance center uses three channels: Manipulation of objects, as fingerpainting, clay modeling or woodworking;

Doll play, to allow the child to work with imitation people and set up his own relationship; Therapist-child relationship, in which the former adopts a generally permissive and accepting attitude toward the child, who searches out his relations with adults.

Friday Dr. Robert O'Connor, Madison, visited the center. He is superintendent of the Wisconsin Diagnostic Center and president of the Wisconsin Association of Psychiatric Clinics for Children.

Fight Being Waged For Brokers Board

Nelson to Appoint Member When Term Expires in July

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

MADISON — A quiet fight is being waged for the control of the Wisconsin Real Estate Brokers Board, one of the powerful regulatory and licensing agencies of the state government.

Immediate target is the seat of Julius Dinger, prominent Eau Claire realtor, senior member of the board, and for the last several years its chairman. Dinger's term of office will expire in July. The big topic of discussion in the real estate brokerage field is the governor's decision about reappointing or replacing him.

Dinger is identified as a Republican, although he has not been an active partisan in a state-wide way. Gov. Nelson has not been inclined to favor Republican candidates for state office appointments, in part because he has been under heavy pressure to acknowledge the claims of members of the Democratic organization.

Trade Watches

The situation is being watched eagerly in the trade because Gov. Nelson's first nominee for the board, Howard Meister of Milwaukee, is one of the most aggressive of the Democratic politicians of the state. He is currently chairman of the Milwaukee County Democratic party organization, to which Nelson owes more than to any other party unit in the state. Meister is a close friend and ardent supporter of Nelson, moreover, and is widely supposed to be advising him on the selection of a candidate for Dinger's seat.

If the governor names another Democrat, it is supposed that Meister will move into the chairmanship and into control of the organization that licenses and regulates thousands of brokers and their salesmen.

The third member of the board is M. William Gerrard of La Crosse, a Republican who was named four years ago by former Gov. Vernon W. Thomson.

Became Important

The board has become a more important arm of the state's regulatory services in recent years.

Quarterly Firm Reports Vary Widely

Differences Among Same Fields, Some Buck Lower Trend

NEW YORK (AP)—For stockholders of more than half the companies reporting earnings, first-quarter results are disappointing. Earnings are averaging 6 per cent below the first three months of 1960. And the decline may be more than that when all the tallies are in.

There are many brilliant exceptions—companies reporting record sales and profits. And the guessing is that the April-June quarter will see earnings making a much happier showing, whether on a basis of actual returns or of comparison with year-ago figures.

Declines, Losses

Of the first 175 companies to report, 95 show declines from their net income in January-March 1960. This year 21 report a net loss, against 10 a year ago. The combined earnings come to $796,620,000 off 6.3 per cent from the $851,005,000 the same firms made in the 1960 first quarter.

But there's a joker in those figures. That is American Telephone & Telegraph, whose record 1961 first quarter profit of $304 million is 7.3 per cent better than a year ago. Disregard giant AT&T and the remaining 174 have earnings of $492,602,000 or down 13.2 per cent from the previous year.

Wide Variation

Rarely have the variations in the returns been so wide. International Business Machines reports a gain of 38.7 per cent. General Electric is off 20 per cent. Du Pont down 11.7 per cent, and Celanese behind by 36 per cent.

Often specific conditions affect individual companies within the same industry. Goodrich trails 1960 by 36.5 per cent and U.S. Rubber and General Tire also report declines, but Firestone has an increase.

Deere & Co looks better this year than last, while International Harvester profits are sharply lower. Scott Paper is in the plus column, while West Virginia Pulp & Paper and Rayonier are in the minus.

Industry Patterns, too

Safeway and National Tea are ahead of a year ago, but the Kroger grocery chain is behind. In the drug field, Pfizer is up; Parke, Davis down.

Sometimes industry patterns prevail.

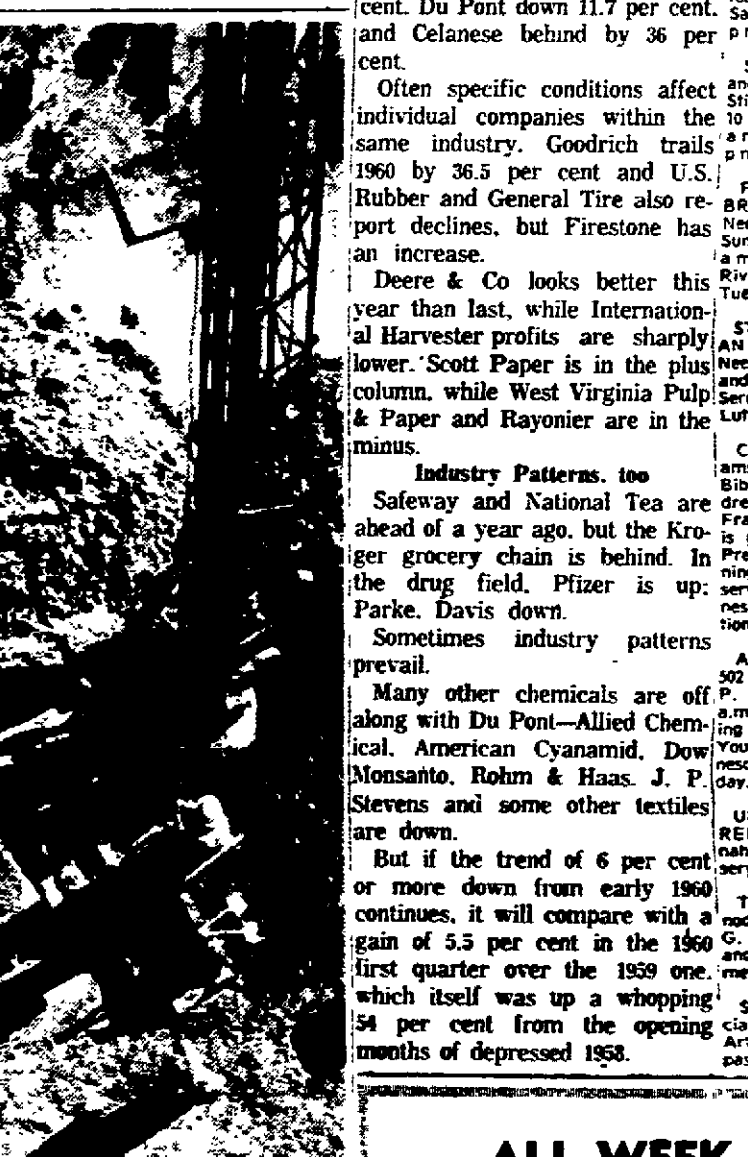

Many other chemicals are off along with Du Pont—Allied Chemical, American Cyanamid, Dow Monsanto, Rohm & Haas, J. P. Stevens and some other textiles are down.

But if the trend of 6 per cent or more down from early 1960 continues, it will compare with a gain of 5.3 per cent in the 1960 first quarter over the 1959 one, which itself was up a whopping 54 per cent from the opening months of depressed 1958.

Menasha TB, Health Group Meets Tuesday

MENASHA — The Menasha tuberculosis and health association will have its annual meeting at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the second floor meeting room of the public library.

The group will seek a plan to educate the community in tuberculosis detection and followup and related activities. Also on the agenda will be election of officers, committee reports and introduction of Mrs. Ray Feit, city nurse.

One of the 136 Concrete caissons to support new wings of Theda Clark Memorial Hospital in Neenah will stand in the hole drilled by the big rig of Hoffman Co., general contractor. Photographer Marshall Savick saw the gumbo in the excavation and decided the view from an upper hospital floor was better.

A candidate for an insurance agent's license was asked in a pre-licensing examination: "What is blanket coverage?" His reply was "It covers you all ways in a bedroom." That was years ago. Today, with the broadening of coverages that have taken place, the answer has a certain pertinence.

No longer need the farmer who has a large investment in machinery, livestock and farm personality limit his recovery in case of loss to a specified, inadequate amount stated in a policy.

The Farm Blanket Policy pays the actual value of items lost. New equipment machinery, livestock and personality purchased after the policy is written are automatically covered. You have coverage every way you look at it.

Second M-E Win

Trucker '9' Wallops Papermakers, 13 to 2

CLINTONVILLE — Exploding 1-bagger, Dwain Etheridge socked for eight runs in the first inning, ed a 2-run safety. After the second Clintonville High School baseball team rolled over Kimberly, slapped his second hit of the 13-2, here Friday afternoon in a Mid-Eastern Conference game.

The contest was halted after two Clintonville hitters batted in the bottom of the fourth because of its 1-sidedness and because of the cold.

Kurt Marshak went all the way for the hosts, allowing just two hits, striking out 10 and walking one. He's a senior right-hander.

Cards Bounce Phillies, 10-9

Schoendienst Wins Game With Double in 11th

BY ED WILKES

Associated Press Sports Writer

You hear it every spring—a whispered whimsy that wonders whether this might be the year Warren Spahn finally loses his touch. Some year, of course, it has to happen. But this year? Forget it.

At 40, he's still Warren the Wonder, pitching his second no-hitter and putting away the 29th victory of his 17-year career Friday night as the Milwaukee Braves beat San Francisco 1-0 and moved past the Giants into the National League lead.

In complete contrast to the artistry at Milwaukee, in which the Braves collected only five hits off loser Sad Sam Jones, the only other National League game produced 34 hits as the St. Louis Cardinals defeated the Philadelphia Phillies 10-9 in 11 innings. The Pittsburgh-Cincinnati and Los Angeles-Chicago games were postponed because of cold.

Pinch-hitter Red Schoendienst, another veteran who has been written off in the past, won it for the Cardinals with a two-run double off losing reliever Dallas Green (1-2) after the Phils had gone ahead in the top of the 11th on a squeeze bunt by Bob Maiklus. The Cards, blowing a 6-1 lead, came from behind on a tying, two-run double by pinch-hitter Alex Grammas in the ninth. Al Cicotte won his first in the NL in relief. He has lost two.

Outduels Wachel; Bill Hotchkiss Hits 3-Run Double

KAUKAUNA — The Kaukauna High School baseball team dropped a 5-3 decision to New London Friday.

It was the third straight Mid-Eastern Conference loss for the Ghosts. New London now has a 2-1 record in league play.

Loser Leigh Wachel did a creditable job, allowing seven hits, striking out 12 and assuring only two bases on balls. Errors in the field hurt the Ghosts.

Angels Drop Twins From AL Lead

Kansas City 4-2 in the only other AL games played. Boston-Detroit and Cleveland-New York were postponed because of cold and rain.

The Angels trailed 3-0 with one of Minnesota's runs unearned before Earl Averill's fourth-inning home run. His second in two games at Wrigley Field, tied it. The Twins broke the tie on two walks and Ren0 Bertio's sing in the eighth, but Ted Kluszewski squared it again in the same inning with his fourth home run—this one a 400-foot shot.

In the 12th, Don Mincher doubled and scored on an error, giving the Twins a 5-4 edge. But the Angels bounced back once more, tying it on Ken Hamlin's home run—his first hit of the season. Then they won it when loser Bill Pleis (2-1), working in relief of Pete Ramos, plunked Hunt after singles by Albie Pearson and Ken Aspromonte and an intentional walk to Klu had loaded the bases. Tom Morgan (1-0) was the winner in relief of Ron Kline.

2-Run Homer

A two-run homer by Jerry Adair broke up a 1-1 tie for the Orioles in the seventh at Washington and beat Bennie Daniels (0-2). Chuck Estrada started for the Orioles and had a one-hit shut-out until the sixth, when Marty Keough walloped a solo homer. Hoyt Wilhelm was the winner for a 2-0 record after retiring Dale Long and Billy Klaus on offid pops and striking out Dutch Dotterer when he relieved in the sixth with two on and none out.

Reliever Frank Baumann saved it for the White Sox and Cal McLish (2-1) at Kansas City, getting pinch-hitter Bob Boyd on a bouncer to the mound for the final out with the bases loaded in the ninth. Ray Herbert (1-1) was the loser, giving up the clinching run in the seventh when Sherm Lollar singled, went to second on a sacrifice by McLish and scored on a single by Jim Landis. Andy Carey homered for the A's.

Leigh Wachel Bowls 218 Line

KAUKAUNA — Leigh Wachel pounded a 218 game and a 2-game series of 394 to pace the final night of action in the Teen-age Recreation League at the Bowling Bar.

Zephyrs Score 8-2 Win Over Stockbridge

Koerner Survives Shaky Start to Gain Triumph

MENASHA — Jim Koerner survived the first two innings and went on to hurl an 8-2 victory over Stockbridge for the St. Mary High School baseball team Friday afternoon at Sixth Street park.

Dave Hemauer slammed a long home run in the first inning, and three hits and an error accounted for another Stockbridge marker in the second. But Koerner came back to blank the visitors for four innings. During the final four frames he allowed only one hit.

The Zephyrs scored one marker in the second after two were out. Paul Mix walked and scored on Phil Keller's 2-bagger.

Score 5 Times

Two hits, an error, and a pair of walks enabled the Zephyrs to score five times in the third inning and virtually clinch the contest. Koerner singled, and Keller tripled to highlight the inning.

St. Mary used successive singles by Bill Becker, Pete Snyder and Mix to get two additional runs in the fifth inning.

Louis Hemauer hurled the route for Stockbridge. He struck out 12, walked three, hit one batter, and gave up six hits. Koerner also went the distance for St. Mary, allowing five hits, striking out five and walking only one.

St. Mary was to journey to Fond du Lac today to face lefty Jim Kalk in a Fox Valley conference game.

Arnold Palmer Leads by 3 Hits Blazing 63 In Texas Open; Geiberger Second

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Arnold Palmer, whose throne as the biggest man in golf has been taken over by a 25-year-old upstart, was on the way to making up some of the lost ground today as he led the $30,000 Texas Open into its third round.

Palmer won more money last year than any man in golf history—over $80,000—but this year he woke up to find young Gary Player of South Africa leading him by some $11,000, with the tour almost half over.

So Arnie got busy and Friday he shot an eight-under-par 63 to grab the lead at the halfway mark in the Texas Open with 130.

Seeks Fourth Win

He sets out today three strokes ahead of young Al Geiberger of Santa Barbara, Calif., and eight strokes to the good over Player as he seeks not only a repeat as champion of the Texas Open but his fourth tournament victory of the year.

If he bats the $4,300 first money he can pull within about $7,000 of Player.

Palmer said he wanted to overtake Player in the money race but won't be playing many tournaments at the end of the tour due to other commitments, including the British Open. But he's going to make a big try.

Geiberger was in second place with 133 while Jack Burke of Houston and Al Balding of Toronto, Canada, were tied for third place at 134.

Dark Has Been on Both Sides In Spahn's No-Hit Victories

Spahn Pitches Second No-Hit Tilt of Career

MILWAUKEE (AP)—San Francisco manager Alvin Dark has played major roles in both no-hit games by southpaw Warren Spahn about me—he knows my game," said Spahn later. "I had to be extra careful because I remembered how he used to ask me about the way I'd pitch to batters last year."

Said Dark: "He pitched himself a beautiful ball game, but I couldn't think about any no-hitter. We were only one run behind and I wanted to get a runner (Alou) on first base."

Dark was in left field for the Braves last Sept. 16 as Spahn hurled a 4-0 masterpiece against the Philadelphia Phillies.

Betty Jameson thrilled the crowd with the only sub-par round of the $6,500 tournament Friday—a sparkling 71. The round moved her into third place with a 149, one stroke ahead of veterans Louise Suggs of Atlanta and Patty Berg of St. Andrews, Ill.

Barbara McIntire of Lake Park, Fla., moved into the lead among amateurs by firing an 80 for a two-day total of 159.

Yale Distance Medley Team Sets Record

Michigan Wins 4-Mile Event In Penn Relays

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Don't tell track coach Oliver Jackson of Abilene Christian College those Ivy Leaguers can't be tough to beat. He knows different.

Abilene had its sights set on winning four of the eight relay titles at the Penn Relays this weekend, the distance medley, 440, 880 and the mile. But along came Yale Friday and then there were three.

Yale whipped the runners from the Southwest in the distance medley, although it took a record-breaking performance to do it. The Elis won in 9:53.9 bettering the 9:55.3 set by Villanova in 1958.

In Friday's other feature event, Michigan shot the works in the four mile and won on a terrific finishing kick by Ergas Leps, the native Lithuanian and Canadian Olympian. He collared Harvard's dogged anchorman, Mark Mullin, in the stretch, and led the Ivy League home by some eight yards. The time for the rain-swept race was 17:16.3.

Price Fixing Quite Common In Business

Public, Government Control Many Forms Of Legal Controls

NEW YORK (AP)—Price fixing is a dirty term to consumers—particularly when they suspect the price is fixed higher than it would have been under free competition. But price fixing today is also a confusing term because it is so widespread. And sometimes it's legal but sometimes it's not. And often it's done by the government itself.

Price fixing is much in the news today because in Washington a subcommittee is hearing testimony on an antitrust conspiracy for which a federal judge ordered 29 makers of electrical equipment nearly $2 million and seven of their officials to jail for a month. The offense was illegal price fixing and bid rigging.

Just Can't Win But some of the defendants pleaded that if the companies in that crowded industry hadn't divided the market amongst themselves the largest ones could have given the small ones to the wall.

Many businessmen are confused about price-fixing bans, because it is customary to try to stop price wars by agreeing on an equitable price that will let all concerned function at a profit instead of a loss.

Rightist Propose New Attack on De Gaulle's Plan

ALGIERS (AP)—Diehard rightist settlers who remained underground during the abortive revolt against President Charles de Gaulle emerged today with defiant calls for a new uprising. Less than three days after the generals' revolt was crushed, tracts appeared on the streets of Algiers calling for resistance to De Gaulle.

Tracts of the "Organization Secret Army" threatened a new uprising in a desperate bid to preserve European domination of this North African territory. No one bothered to erase dozens of OAS slogans painted on streets and walls.

Government officials, busy with a sweeping purge of the army, police and civilian administration, admitted the European underground organizations posed a continual threat.

But mass arrests, muzzling of the rightwing press and a purge of police and administrative services were expected to reduce the effectiveness of the underground. The mass of Algeria's million Europeans seemed resigned.

Morse said he was notified by Bowles last night that "several emergencies had developed in the State Department" which would make it difficult if not impossible for him to appear before the subcommittee at a hearing scheduled for 9:30 a. m.
